

Various trends of development in China's voluntary service sector

Deng Guosheng

Abstract: Three different trends may be observed in the development of China's voluntary service sector, namely, that of civil initiative and state promotion, state initiative and promotion, and lastly, civil initiative and promotion. China in the 21st century should adapt the growth of the voluntary sector to national conjunctures and continue to develop diverse operational modes within it. However, the flaws observed during the development of the voluntary sector must be removed.
